Hangman's Building Condition Assessment

Winter & Company conducted a Condition Assessment of the Hangman's Building in the Virginia City historic district. The area, which is a National Historic Landmark, includes a variety of early mining-era structures. The Hangman's Building is one of a variety of small wood frame structures that survive. The Condition Assessment was executed for the National Park Service, using their standards. Individual building components were identified and their significance was rated. The condition of each element was evaluated and recommendations for repairs were provided.
