CRESTED BUTTE, COLORADO

Old Rock School House Historic Structure Assessment

The Gunnison County School District wanted to determine the best use of the Old Rock School House in Crested Butte, Colorado, and therefore needed an analysis of use options and restoration needs. Winter & Company directed the preparation of feasibility studies for the district that evaluated re-use of the school as a library, town hall, school and office building. The studies determined the preferred use to be as an educational facility, and included researching the building's history, evaluating its existing condition, and defining the program requirements of the school district. The renovation was programmed in stages to accommodate the school district's budget constraints and is now completed.
